The EcoGothic in the Long Nineteenth Century
Guest Editor: David Del Principe, Montclair State University

Contents

The EcoGothic in the Long Nineteenth Century   David Del Principe   1
Abominable Transformations: Becoming-Fungus in Arthur Machen’s The Hill of Dreams  Anthony Camara   9
(M)eating Dracula: Food and Death in Stoker’s Novel  David Del Principe   24
The Bog Gothic: Bram Stoker’s ‘Carpet of Death’ and Ireland’s Horrible Beauty  Derek Gladwin   39
Meat, Cannibalism and Humanity in Paul du Chaillu’s Explorations and Adventures in Equatorial Africa, or, What Does a Gorilla Hunter Eat for Breakfast?  John Miller   70
‘L’orrida magnificenza del luogo.’ Gothic Aesthetics in Antonio Fogazzaro’s Malombra  Maria Parrino   85
An Already Alienated Animality: Frankenstein as a Gothic Narrative of Carnivorism  Jackson Petsche   98
Between Darwin and San Francesco: Zoographic Ambivalences in Mantegazza, Ouida, and Vernon Lee  Nicoletta Piredda   111

Reviews   128